the sensit?" ours of ladies whom some reverse of fickle fortune has reduced from afficence to the sensitive cars of ladies whom some reverse of fickle fortune has reduced from affluence to dependance upon their own resources. I have repeatedly heard these words coarsely, even sneeringly uttered by men whom one would auppose cherished finer feelings. They would not, upon any account, have their daughtees in the "Department." Indeed! And why not, foresoth? Because, fortunately, they happes to have money enough to keep said "olive branches" in luxurious homes of their own, and to bestow upon them all the pleasures of wealth and society. But have not many "Department Womes" been just as tenderly reared, and would they not, if thus hedged round by every advantage, and blessed with the same accessories, appear every whit as brilliant and as charming as these same generical their control of the same accessories, appear every whit as brilliant and as charming as these same generals much, and have they forgotten those other no less loving fathers who perished for the peace we now enjoy? Suppose some Nemonsis should give fortune's wheel another sudden turn and sweep your wealth, oh, haughty gentlemen, to the winder might not your petted daughters, porhaps, be fain to seek just such employment at the generous hands of Uncle Samuel? Can you think of anything more "respectable" that they could do? Their boots reached to the knees, and the cut of their hair would indicate that an inverted bowl had been placed upon their heads and its edge used as a guide for the shears. The women wore a cloth about the head, and over the ends of that a coarse, warm closk. Many of them wore heavy boots, and had bables, which they carried before them in a sort of aling that seemed to be a part of the outer garments. The children were dressed exactly like ministure contenarians. They carried peculiar vessels made of skins, in which they put bread and other purchased supplies. Though Russian subjects, they spoke only Gorman, in which tongue they were exceedingly communicative. Some of them were Greek Catholics; others Memomentes. They Time-ed quiet.

They found Russian taxes oppreseive and compal-sory military service offcusive to their religi-ous principles, and having heard from friends in America, attractive pictures of life here, they sold their farms, cattit, pigs and poultry to try the Republic. They started some months ago, but on one pretext or another were delayed by Russian officials, who seemed loath to loose them, so that they now arrive as a discouraging season of the year.

A Jersey City merchant, who is very fond of pets, kept his six canaries and a cat in his place of business, which he beasted rivaled liarnum's "happy family" in amiability. Upon going to his store yesterday morning he was astonished to find that his pets had consolidated, the cat being the only one of the party left alive. Disgusted, to say the least of it, with this tragte method of "reconstruction." the merchant emptied the contents of a shot-gun into the remaining member, and now the whole "happy family," encesed in a cat's akin, sleep in the same grave.

Handaome and novel decorations may be made for the dinner tables of holiday festivals by the exercise of a little ingenuity, as, for instance, roses cut out of carrots, carrational curved from blood-red beets, fruit parings artistically curled, bafter molded into graceful forms of beasts and birds, elaborately cut pineapples, eggs frothed into ministure fountains, puddings moulded into easy of core, napkina folded into a hundred odd devices, &c.
